

Intertoe Towel

Abstract

This invention discloses an intertoe towel operable for drying between the toes. The intertoe towel consists of an elongated, tubular body member made of plush absorbent fabric, an elongate flexible core disposed within the tubular member and a loop handle affixed to at least one end of the body member to facilitate pulling the towel between the toes. This application claims the benefit of U.S. Provisional Application No. 60/524,395 filed 11/24/2003.
